From the Principal's Desk

It is high time to catapult the students to a realm other than rote learning. Engaging students in all basic skills they need is to be the primordial need of any educational institution today. Talking education is the need of the hour and snippets of information through the visual media such as TedEd and Teaching Tube can transform the meaning of learning especially for many students who are strapped for time or for those who are sick and tired of traditional learning. We at SRCS keep this in mind in the daily transactions and the teaching pedagogy is tailored to cater these needs of the learners. A quick glimpse of the events in the school will confirm these facts. I welcome all my well wishers and readers to have a quick look at the SRCS for the past couple of months.

Happy reading!

Great School With A Great Vision!

At Shri Ram Centennial School, we believe in education that extends beyond the walls of the classroom. Shri Ram Centennial School believes that a play-centric model is key in a young child's learning.

We also emphasise on learning through spontaneous investigation (observation, experimentation, and inquiry). Children are natural scientists. They devote their endless amount of energy to learning all aspects of the culture they are born in, including language, stories, music, and literature. They investigate with all their senses and emerging skills what people mean, when things are appropriate and when they are not, where things come from, what they are for, how they are made, and how adults and peers respond to them. They try to make sense of common objects by prying into them, taking them apart, and manipulating them in a variety of ways. Appropriate curriculum and teaching methods at the Shri Ram Centennial School, includes activities and encouragement for kindergartens in these quests and feature the importance of individual children's feelings and emotions in group settings.

Shri Ram Centennial School has a curriculum that involves a variety and balance of activities that can be provided in the context of project work. Children undertake projects in which they investigate a real event or object. In the course of such projects, the children strengthen literacy and numeracy skills and also speaking and listening skills and acquire new words as they share their findings with others.

Quiz Competition

A quiz is a game which can also be called a mind sport wherein the players, either as individuals or in teams attempt to answer questions posed to them correctly, in order to win a prize which in turn gives them zeal to enrich and acquire more and more knowledge.

Field Trips

Field trips are very important part of learning in Early childhood stage. As they develop the visual literacy and gives a very different environment from learning in the classroom.

Role plays

Role plays are an excellent way of getting students to practise their English. They simulate real life situations and allow them to act out what they would do in a real situation.

Elocution

Elocution is an art of careful public speaking, using clear pronunciation and good breathing control over voice. At SRCS we inculcate this skill at appropriate age.

Physical fitness

By encouraging your child to do some physical activity every day, you are helping your child to be healthy now and setting up healthy habits for life which will increase their confidence, self-esteem, energy and better memory.
